Mr. Alvian Wardhana Ardianshyah, 25, Indonesia

Alvian is an educator and human rights defender who focuses on empowering Indigenous communities. At just 14, he began advocating for Indigenous Peoples' rights by leading community engagement initiatives in junior high schools through the #SaveMeratus Movement in South Borneo to protect Indigenous lands and territories. He continued his journey by founding Literasi Anak Banua, an NGO focused on challenging the status quo for Indigenous communities in South Borneo. He also actively engages in policy interventions to ensure Indigenous Peoples' inclusion in policies and grievance mechanisms. Through his impactful work, he has received international recognition, including the Diana Award and a place on ILA's 30 Under 30 list, and has spoken at forums ranging from the G20 and OIC to the United Nations. With his background, he offers unique skills, innovative tools, resources, and experience to help shape the future of integrity, ethics, and anti-corruption.
