Ms. Jacquiline Godfrey Msambila, 27, Tanzania

Jacquiline Msambila is a Tanzanian ethics and governance specialist and the founder of the Sustainable Africa Digital Transformation Initiative (SADTI). Her initiatives include Fahari Voices, a civic engagement digital platform where citizens report issues and hold government accountable. She holds a Master's in Ethics of Governance and Public Service. Her interest in integrity began while working at the Tanzania's Prevention and Combating of Corruption Bureau (PCCB), where she helped launch anti-corruption clubs in about 50 schools. She saw that young people already understand what corruption costs them. What they lack is a channel and a language to act. She now builds accessible digital tools and content that meet youth where they are.
