

Elisa Orlando, anti-corruption and community worker, holds expertise on the theory and practice of community-based monitoring. She has graduated in Political Science from the University of Vienna in 2019, and has specialised in “Analysis, Prevention and Fight against Organised Crime and Corruption” from the University of Pisa (Master APC) in 2021. Her studies and recent work have focused on sustainability and civic anti-corruption. Since 2018, she has collaborated, among others, with Transparency International Norway, RE-ACT, Gruppo Abele, UNIDO, UNODC and the Austrian Ministry for Environment Protection (BMK).

She is currently working for the anti-corruption monitoring initiative of Libera. Associations, Names and Numbers against Mafias (Italy), promoting community development, providing training and support for the local communities engaged in civic monitoring, conducting research, and advancing national and local advocacy actions.

She is also project manager of “You Monitor: empowering Youth to build Monitorial communities against corruption” for mafianeindanke e.V. (Germany), aimed at developing simplified contents and non-formal educational methods usable by youth workers for empowering and engaging young people in active citizenship against corruption (the project is co-funded by the European Commission, under the Erasmus+ programme).
