

Isaiah Thomas is a Food Science and Technology Undergraduate student from Trinidad and Tobago who had his passion for sustainable development ignited through interacting with various United Nations youth constituencies. His passions include Youth Peace and Security, Diplomacy, Transformation of the Global Food System, and Climate Action. Isaiah is also a National Point of Contact for his home country for the Space Generation Advisory Council in Support of the United Nations Programme on Space Applications and Real Food Systems Youth Ambassador where he intends to increase local and regional capacity for the development of space application programs and food security by building on appropriate policy frameworks and strategies.

UNODC

United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime

Global Resource for Anti-Corruption
Education and Youth Empowerment