

Ms. Rachida El Rhdioui, 25, Morocco

Rachida El Rhdioui is a global citizen and a visionary young Amazigh woman, on a mission to equip those who are left behind with strategies, skills, and technology to thrive as active citizens. She has translated her passion through her work with citizens, governments, and organizations with proven track records in youth engagement, gender equality, governance, digital inclusion, peacebuilding, and social entrepreneurship. With a multidisciplinary academic background in humanities, peace, mediation, and business administration, such diversity allowed her to excel and impact +2000 individuals through training, mentoring, and leading. Recently, Rachida was awarded the Emerging Leader Award by the Female Founders Global Initiative and was selected as one of the GCYLP fellows by ITU and Huawei to fund her digital project. Her moment of obligation began as a firsthand witness to the Arab Spring and its profound impact on her region. The spirit and determination she saw in those striving for a better region deeply inspired her, catalysing her journey into activism and leadership. Rachida is a passionate and proactive Youth Engagement Consultant, dedicated to fostering collaboration through an intersectional and intergenerational approach. She specializes in bridging the gap between anti-corruption efforts and meaningful youth engagement, aiming to create impactful and inclusive strategies that empower young people to actively combat corruption.
