

Rafael Leite is a consultant in public administration and specialist in State reform and modernization. He is currently a research fellow at the Johannesburg-based think tank GAPP (Government and Public Policy), where he develops research projects on civil service reform and comparative studies on administrative modernization in Global South countries.

He has worked in a number of civil society organizations and public agencies, such as Vetor Brasil, Lemann Foundation, the Chilean Civil Service Agency, and the Audit Office of the São Paulo City Hall. Rafael has developed technical consulting projects with international organizations such as the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB), as well as developing research activities in different Brazilian academic centers and think tanks. He is also a member of the Open Government Partnership (OGP) Youth Collective.

Mr. Leite holds a degree in public administration from Getulio Vargas Foundation/São Paulo School of Business Administration (FGV/EAESP) with academic exchange at the Pontifical Catholic University of Chile (UC).

twitter.com/leiterafaelo | <https://www.linkedin.com/in/leiterafaelo/>

UNODC

United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime

Global Resource for Anti-Corruption
Education and Youth Empowerment